West's Claims Of Persecution To Be Pressed

Will Seek Verdict From U.N.
On Soviet Satellites' Actions

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y., Sept. 14 (INS).—The Western Powers are working on a plan to call on the International Court of Justice for a verdict on the peace treaty violations charged against three Communist Balkan nations.

It was reliably learned at the United Nations today that the United States, probably acting with Britain and France, may sponsor the move in the General Assembly next week against Hungary, Bulgaria and Romania.

Such a decision by the 59-nation Assembly requires adoption of a resolution and it undoubtedly will precipitate extensive debate.

Fear Result Of Entry Into Albania

MOSCOW, Sept. 14 (AP).—Foreign observers commented here today that if Greek troops invade Albania—no matter what the reason—the Soviet Union probably will regard the action in a most serious light.

They said recent Greek-Albanian developments contain "diplomatic dynamite."

(A Greek source said in Athens, Tuesday, that Greece will invade Albania in "self-defence" if any new attacks are launched by the Communist guerrillas from the Albanian side.)

Russia and Albania have no mutual-assistance pact in the sense of one side coming to the aid of the other in case of aggression by a third party, but they are bound together by numerous other ties.

Need for Japanese Pact Seen by Bevin, Acheson

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14 (AP).—State Secretary Acheson and Foreign Secretary Bevin centred their talks on Europe and the Balkans today after agreeing that a Japanese peace treaty is urgently needed for a long-delayed Pacific settlement.

Acheson reported the two in agreement on the need for the treaty, and indicated the United States and Britain may make a new bid to Russia to end a two-year deadlock over what countries shall take part in drafting it.

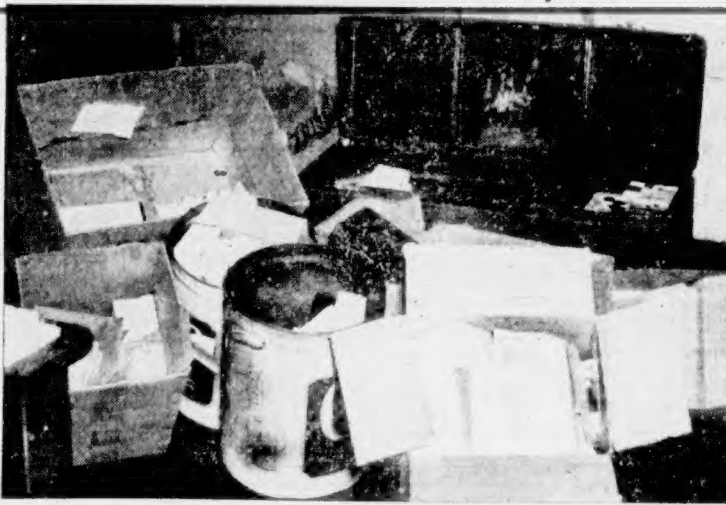

At the same time it was learned that the two governments from on the idea advanced in Athens of a Greek invasion of Albania to block further support from that country for the Communist guerrillas.

For the second day, the two top policy chiefs were tackling the pressing cold-war political problems which confront the Western Powers.

They said in a joint statement at the end of an hour-long meeting at the State Department that the discussion was "largely on political developments in Europe, including the Balkans." Also taken up were problems concerned with the formation here next Saturday of the North Atlantic Pact Council. The exchange of views was described as "mutually satisfactory."

Police Seize Tickets, Stubs and Lottery Records

Scores of thousands of tickets and stubs, along with lottery records, are shown above stacked up in the inspector's office at the city police station. All of the evidence was seized yesterday in a series of brilliant city police raids culminating an investigation of months.

Included in the haul were tickets for November distribution. Above, police officers fan out a few of the many books now being held as evidence.

Still Resist Devaluation Of Pound

LONDON, Sept. 14 (AP).—British Treasury spokesmen stood firm today on past declarations of Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, that Britain had no intention of devaluing the pound sterling.

A New York Times dispatch from London stated that well-informed financial circles predicted the International Monetary Fund would announce this week the pound had been devalued from its pegged rate of $4.03 to $3.20.

New York quotations on pounds for delivery in 30 days closed at $3.92 13/16, a loss of more than 4 cents. British Government bonds edged lower on the London Stock Exchange.

Proposals to devalue the pound and other European currencies will be discussed at Washington, D.C., by directors of the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank.

U.S. Prepares Plans For War Transport

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14 (INS).—Federal and private officials have been meeting secretly for the last two weeks to draw up plans for ocean transportation of troops, munitions and supplies in event of another war.

It was disclosed today that the problem of overseas transport is the subject of a series of closed-door meetings which have been in progress in Washington and New York.

The meetings are being conducted by subcommittees of a sea transport and mobilization survey headed by Maj.-Gen. Philip B. Fleming, chairman of the Maritime Commission.

Participants in the conferences are representatives of the defence establishment, civilian Government agencies and officials of steamship companies.

Col. Allen B. Barber, associate director of the N.S.R.B. transportation office, said the sea-transport groups are studying what the demands would be in event of war and the means of meeting them.

Barber pointed out that the preparations are going forward under act of Congress and that the purpose simply is to be ready if hostilities should break out. He said:

"Nationally, we all hope these plans will never be needed."

Board officials said that the net result of all these plans is that the United States is now much better prepared for war than it has ever been before in peacetime.

Col. Barber explained that "there is a very large amount of tonnage" to meet ocean transport demands if war should occur.

He said: "The ship-merchant fleet, he said, 'is in pretty good shape.' He added:

"There are a very large number of cargo vessels of the Liberty type and a few other types."

Released by Russians in Germany

Major Victor Miller, Jr. (right), and his father, a movie cameraman, are shown stopping at a check point near Berlin after being released Tuesday by the Russians. The Milners had been under arrest in the Soviet Zone of Germany since September 10.

Major Miller, an aide to Maj.-Gen. J. P. Hodges of the United States Military Government, and his father, were on a motor trip to Berlin when they were arrested by the Russians. See story on Page 2.

Men who dealt in credit notes that collections were tightening and installment buying was on the increase.

Lumber men said local sales were good. Overseas sales, however, were still a question mark.

Left-handed consolation for those who feared depression was the fact that the cost of living index maintained its steady upward trek.

Provincial Bureau of Economics and Statistics reported that Canada's over-all index, calculated on a 1935-39 base of 100, jumped from 162.1 in July to 162.8 in August. At the same time last year it stood at 157.5.

The cost of food index, approximately 40 per cent of the cost of living, was up from 202.6 in August, 1948, to 203.2 in August, 1949. Rent, light and fuel were also substantially higher.

Police Raids Bare Big Lottery Chain Based in Victoria

Navy Veteran Under Arrest, Thousands of Tickets Seized

Scores of thousands of tickets and ticket stubs with records of a Dominion-wide lottery chain based in the Greater Victoria area were seized yesterday in a series of raids culminating a brilliant two-month investigation by the Victoria police department.

Majority of the mass of paper was seized in a raid on a house located on the West Road side of Prospect Lake. Smaller quantities were seized in a series of smaller raids. Tickets for the November drawing were taken from a local printing shop.

The fast chain of events yesterday was touched off by the arrest of Frank Hilton, a navy veteran, on downtown streets at 11:40 a.m. yesterday.

By 1:35 p.m. the seizure at the Prospect Lake house was well under way. Then the smaller raids were carried out during the afternoon. Saanich police co-operated closely in their area.

Hilton was charged with "conducting a certain scheme for determining the holders of what tickets or lots or numbers are the winners of certain property, to wit, the Canadian Mutual Transportation Association lottery tickets, disposed of by chance, contrary to Section 236 of the Criminal Code." He will appear in city police court this morning. Bail was set last night at $500.

Late last night, city police were still busy sorting and analyzing the tickets, stubs and records. Indications were that the business end of the records were in code.

Directed investigation

The work of months in investigating the lottery was carried out under the direct supervision of Chief John A. McLellan and Deputy Chief John Blackstock. Yesterday's arrest was made by Constables William Andrews and Alex Nichol, who had currently been working on the case. Deputy Chief Blackstock and the two constables worked late last night preparing the evidence for presentation in court today.

Distribution lists showed that the lottery covered Canada from coast to coast.

Saanich Votes Confidence In Department

Saanich Council has passed a vote of confidence in the municipal fire department, according to John B. Tribe, municipal clerk.

The confidence motion was passed after the council heard statements accusing the fire department of inefficiency. The statements were made by the Ward Six Ratepayers' Association.

Following the statements, a meeting was held between the association and the council when the entire issue was thrashed out. Council felt there was no basis for the statements of inefficiency, and at a subsequent meeting passed the confidence motion.

George H. Coughlin, 65, of Laguna Beach, Cal., fought in a Philadelphia court against the release of August (The Crank) Pascal, who pleaded guilty to a kidnapping charge in 1929.

Pascal escaped the electric chair because the Coughlin baby's body never was found.

The convict is seeking his freedom by repudiating his "confession" to the crime.

He charged state police "forced" him to confess by beating him brutally. He also repudiated his previous testimony that ransom notes sent in the case were written by him.

It was the first time the tall, white-haired Coughlin and the 64-year-old Pascal faced each other in the nearly three decades that have elapsed since the then 13-month-old baby was snatched from his home near Norristown, Pa.

Coughlin pleaded with the court not to release Pascal and told of paying ransom after receiving 11 notes.

The prisoner was seized when he tried to pick up $5,000 left at a rendezvous point.

Former State Police Superintendent Lynn G. Adams testified that Pascal had never been beaten while he was in custody.

Development of antimony prospects along Trux Creek and Trux Mountain is going ahead in the Bridge River Valley, Dr. J. F. Walker confirmed yesterday.

Although the market for antimony is quiet just now, he said, a Vancouver company is going ahead with development with the idea that demand will increase in the future.

One of the main sources of antimony in the past has been China. Present unrest in China, however, makes it probable that this supply may be cut off.

Up to now Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company at Trail has been the only producer of antimony in British Columbia and it ceased production some time ago.

According to Dr. Walker, there are some high grade deposits in the Bridge River area but they lie scattered in pockets.

Nobody Able to Give Answer Guaranteed For Six Months on Business Conditions

By G. E. MORTIMORE

"How's business?" is today's jack-pot question.

Nobody from garagemen to vice-presidents can give an answer guaranteed to hold firm for six months.

Most businessmen hasten to assure questioners that "things are holding up very well." Privately, they are not so certain.

Optimists point to higher employment, construction, coal production, wholesale and retail sales, imports and exports, reflected in the last survey of British Columbia business released in the last survey of the Bureau of Economics and Statistics.

More caution

Pessimists note that inventories are piling up, many goods are moving more slowly than they did. Investors are showing more caution.

Middle-of-the-roaders hold their ground and keep quiet, knowing that depression talk is one of the biggest factors in bringing a depression about.

Economists juggle words, figures and graphs and come up with the opinion that the "business cycle" is telling up a gentle hill. None of them can map the journey into the valley.

Plain men keep working and hoping. Those who sell admit that the "buyers' market" has been here for some time, and look forward to more of the same.

The dreaded recession turned out to be junior-size, but wary businessmen keep watch for its big brother. A Victoria stockbroker pointed out that New York industrial were up several points, and were showing a steady advance. He said production and sales had dropped off somewhat all over the continent as manufacturers and merchants cut back in anticipation of a slump that never came.

"The feeling on the stock market seems a little brighter," he said cautiously. "We might see a more active, bullish market soon."

Victoria retailers agreed that buyers were growing more selective. There was a bigger demand for more expensive makes of cars, washing machines, refrigerators and electric ranges. Surprisingly enough, there were still shortages in the top price-range of these commodities. Dealers reported they had waiting lists of several months' standing for United States-made automobiles in short supply because of Canada's dollar-saving program.

Quick delivery

Yet salesmen were on the road—though in less strength than before the war—selling standard models of vacuum cleaners, washing machines and similar goods. And some car dealers were giving delivery of lower-to-medium priced new cars within a week.

Tired car dealers admitted privately that business was sluggish. Publicly they said it was "back to normal."

Said one dealer: "Not long ago a man could buy a car for any reasonable price and be sure of selling it at a profit. That's not true any longer."

The same could be said of real estate, although realtors were reluctant to comment on housing prices.

In many lines of business, the quick-money men were lying low or getting out of the market.

CONSTRUCTION CLIMES

However, construction, regarded as one of the most significant indices of business health, kept mounting. The dollar-cost of permits issued in British Columbia during June was 11.4 per cent higher than in the same month of 1948. The Provincial Bureau of Economics and Statistics reported.

Bank clearings in British Columbia for the first seven months of the year were up 8 per cent over the corresponding period of last year.

Men who dealt in credit notes that collections were tightening and installment buying was on the increase.

Lumber men said local sales were good. Overseas sales, however, were still a question mark.

Left-handed consolation for those who feared depression was the fact that the cost of living index maintained its steady upward trek.

Provincial Bureau of Economics and Statistics reported that Canada's over-all index, calculated on a 1935-39 base of 100, jumped from 162.1 in July to 162.8 in August. At the same time last year it stood at 157.5.

The cost of food index, approximately 40 per cent of the cost of living, was up from 202.6 in August, 1948, to 203.2 in August, 1949. Rent, light and fuel were also substantially higher.

See Support From Wismer

British Columbia's Attorney-General, Gordon S. Wismer, is expected to give full support to the West-coast Transmission Company's application to build a $100,000,000 gas pipeline from Alberta through British Columbia to Seattle.

Mr. Wismer leaves here next week to attend a hearing by the Transport Board in Ottawa on the company's future plans for the line. Hearing date is set for September 21.

Mr. Wismer said British Columbia favors a pipeline that will carry through as much as the province's territory as possible.

Westcoast's project calls for a pipe from Northern Alberta, running through British Columbia's Peace River District to Prince George, and south to Vancouver and Washington State.

Immigrants, Newfoundland Spur Population to 13,545,000

OTTAWA, Sept. 14 (CP)—Canada's population shot ahead by leaps and bounds in the last year and now is estimated at 13,545,000, the Bureau of Statistics reported today.

First Session Of Parliament Opening Today

OTTAWA, Sept. 14 (CP)—The curtain will rise tomorrow on the opening of the first session of Canada's 21st Parliament, a parliament larger than any in the country's 82-year-old legislative history.

The increased representation results from Newfoundland's historic union with Canada last March 31 and from the 1947 Redistribution Act which reshuffled the boundaries of electoral constituencies in most provinces. The Redistribution Act did not become effective until the general election June 27.

In the election, the Liberals scored an overwhelming victory and as a result 50 of them will occupy seats to the left of the Speaker where Opposition members usually sit. There are 274 seats in the chamber and a membership of 382.

The present standing is: Liberals, 185; Progressive Conservatives, 40; C.C.F., 13; Social Credit, ten; Independents, four; Independent Liberal, one; vacant, eight; total 382.

In the Senate, where appointments are made for life, the representation is Liberals, 78; Progressive Conservatives, 15; vacant, ten; total 103.

Commemorate Training Plan

OTTAWA, Sept. 14 (CP)—Top Government and Air Force officials from four Commonwealth countries will take part September 30 in a ceremony to commemorate their partnership in the giant wartime British Commonwealth air training plan. They include the three top figures in Britain's air preparations.

At the Trenton, Ont., R.C.A.P. base, memorial gates will be presented to Canada by the United Kingdom, Australia and New Zealand who sent thousands of their sons to train in this country for air action.

Special Edition On Anniversary

QUEBEC, Sept. 14 (CP)—Premier Duplessis today pressed a button that set brand new presses rolling on the 185th anniversary edition of The Quebec Chronicle-Telegraph, oldest newspaper enterprise in North America.

The Quebec Government leader was chief guest at the inauguration of a modern Chronicle-Telegraph plant in St. Malo, old Quebec's new industrial district.

Celebrating publication of the first edition of The Quebec Gazette in 1864, The Chronicle-Telegraph published today a 40-page edition, 24 pages of which were devoted to the ancestry of the present paper, greetings from Quebec businesses and the story of the growth of the provincial capital.

Premier Duplessis, addressing guests attending the inauguration, attributed Canada's greatness to its joint French-English culture.

Pleads Guilty To Having Counterfeits

VANCOUVER, Sept. 14 (CP)—First conviction in what police believe is a country-wide counterfeit ring came today in police court here.

Twenty-eight-year-old Lloyd Presley was remanded to Thursday for sentence when he pleaded guilty to charges of possessing and attempting to pass counterfeit bills.

Presley was arrested Labor Day at the Pacific National Exhibition when he attempted to pass a bogus $10. He had 24 of the bogus notes in his possession when arrested.

Counterfeit charges against Eugene Lewis, 29, were dismissed here yesterday. He was the only other man charged so far in connection with the alleged ring.

Chicago Strike May End Soon

CHICAGO, Sept. 14 (AP)—Representatives of Chicago's five major newspapers and their striking printers agreed tonight upon terms for settling a strike which began 22 months ago.

The agreement was reached at an unpublished meeting of officials of the Chicago Newspaper Publishers' Association and Local 16, Chicago Typographical Union (A.F.L.).

Terms of a proposed new contract will be voted upon at a meeting of the 1500 striking printers Sunday.

John J. Pich, Local 16 president, said terms of the contract had been approved by the executive council of the International Typographical Union.

Under the proposed contract, the printers would get a $10 weekly wage increase.

Frank Senneker, a member of the executive board of Local 16, said the agreement gives the printers the best working conditions possible under the Taft-Hartley Act.

HAYNES, Bedfordshire, Eng. (CP)—The Woman's Institute here debated: "Is the girl of 1949 as happy as the girl of 1909?" They decided she is not.

Blame Blast For Crash Of Airliner

QUEBEC, Sept. 14 (CP)—A coronor's jury today blamed the death of 24 persons in last Friday's crash of a Canadian Pacific Airlines plane on a mysterious explosion in a forward luggage compartment.

The six-man jury announced its verdict after listening to a dozen witnesses. They included men who saw or heard a mid-air explosion aboard the DC-3, and an aeronautical engineer who said examination of wreckage at Sault Ste. Marie pointed to a blast that shattered the airliner's fuselage amidships.

Disappearance of Henri Paul Bouchard, 23rd person aboard, who has not been positively accounted for, was said to be explained by evidence he was the passenger riding nearest the location of the explosion.

Coroner Paul V. Marceau said the inquest had accomplished its purpose of establishing whether any "gross negligence" had been involved in the crash. He said none was indicated.

Meets Blank Wall In Eviction Case

VANCOUVER, Sept. 14 (CP)—A deputy sheriff here really came up against a blank wall today in an attempt to serve an eviction notice.

He found no home from which to evict the tenants. His comment: "The house has been removed by a housing project; present whereabouts unknown."

Released Pair Say Russians Amazed by Car

BERLIN, Sept. 14 (INB)—A United States Air Force major and his father who were held for four days by the Russians said tonight when they reached Berlin that the Soviet soldiers were "inordinately curious about everything American."

Maj. Victor Milner Jr., 30, and his 36-year-old father, a Hollywood cameraman, said the Russians were also "particularly interested in pictures of Marshal Tito" of Yugoslavia contained in American magazines which the Milners carried.

The Milners were detained last Saturday when they took a wrong turn in the Soviet zone during their drive from Frankfurt to Berlin. They were released last night from a Soviet headquarters at Weimar.

Maj. Milner said the Russians were "amazed" in looking over our American car, and in seeing pictures of American girls in the magazines. "They disapproved, however, he said, 'of the immodestly dressed girls.'"

He described their treatment by the Russians as courteous, and he said he saw "intensive military training by scores of officers and hundreds of troops."

PLAN CONVENTION PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 14 (INB)—The executive board of the C.I.O. International Woodworkers of America will meet in Portland, Monday, in preparation for the union's yearly convention at Vancouver, B.C., September 28 to 30.

Ten-Day Convention of T.L.C. Will Bring Setbacks for Reds

CALGARY, Sept. 14 (CP)—Anti-Red delegate strength for the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada's annual convention piled up today as union men from all over Canada registered for a ten-day meeting expected to bring further setbacks for Communists in Canadian labor.

All indications are that the convention, opening tomorrow, will make permanent an executive association of the union and likely will take other steps against fellow-travelers in the T.L.C. ranks.

OATH OF ALLEGIANCE It appeared likely tonight that an oath of allegiance to the Crown—meaning an oath of anti-Communism—would be laid down by the convention as a condition for future office in the Trades and Labor Congress.

A proposal to this effect was in from the T.L.C.'s Civil Service Workers' Union, and it was expected that it would be endorsed by the executive and the convention's faction gunning particularly at Communism. Spokesmen for both groups said, however, that the provision would be tantamount to a resolution against aid. In practice, the executive is against Communism anyway.

Some modification of Congress convention voting procedure, giving more power to strongly-rightist international unions in the T.L.C., also is reported under consideration.

At all events, the Congress—which at its last year's convention was split down the middle on the issue of Communism in its affiliated unions—appeared today to have a line-up of delegates overwhelmingly in favor of action against Reds.

T.L.C. President Percy Bengough and Frank H. Hall, militant anti-Communist, were among the speakers.

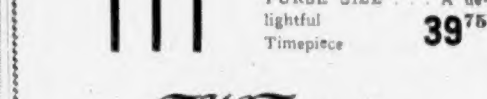

The testimony was given before a Senate judiciary subcommittee investigating subversive activities in its study of legislation to control the movements of anti-American aliens.

The witness was Howard Rushmore, New York Journal-American reporter and one-time Communist, who also told the subcommittee that he estimated that in addition to the card-carrying New York Communist school teachers, "three or four thousand" more teachers are fellow travelers who follow the party line without being actual members.

It takes 10 years before the general bone structure of the foot is and Frank H. Hall, militant anti-Communist, were among the speakers.

Robert Morton, 66, was found dead from a heart attack when Saanich police were called to a house under construction at 3999 Tudor Avenue at 4:20 p.m. yesterday.

Sgt. John Hamilton, with Constables Joseph Armstrong and Robert Coleman, had rushed the police ambulance and emergency equipment to the house after neighbors heard a man fall there. They found Mr. Morton dead on arrival. Mr. Morton's home was 2998 Baynes Avenue, also at Ten Mile Point.

Police said the man had been standing on a ledge filling nail holes with putty when he apparently suffered a heart attack and fell to the floor.

Young Air Traveler Reaches Victoria

An air trip from Athens, Greece, to Victoria is "really something" in anyone's language—mostly Greek, in case of 14-year-old Alexandros Nikitas. Air-minded youth arrived at Patricia Bay in Trans-Canada Air Lines plane Tuesday morning. His trip from Athens included stops at Rome, London, and Montreal. He started trip early last Saturday afternoon. In Victoria he will stay with his aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. G. Rapanos, 1956 Lullie Street. "Alex" doesn't know much English yet, but yesterday morning his aunt taught him to count to ten, and his broad smile means "friendship" in any language. Youthful air traveler, seen above with his aunt and her pet collie "Era," lost his father three years ago. He was killed while fighting Greek guerrillas in mountains of his home country. His mother lives in Southern Greece.

Borstal Said Only Hope As Teen-Agers Sentenced

Two teen-agers were sentenced to terms in Borstal by Magistrate H. C. Hall in city police court yesterday after they pleaded guilty recently to theft and breaking and entering charges.

On a joint charge of breaking and entering and committing theft at Page Cleaners, 2929 Douglas Street, Ray Christianson of Victoria, and Rex Adams, Montreal, were sentenced to a determinate period of three months at New Haven and an indeterminate period of two years less a day.

Adams was given similar concurrent sentences on charges of theft from the Hickman Tye Co. Ltd., 1211 Quadra Street, theft of a rifle owned by Cyril W. Woodward, and theft from the Commonwealth Construction Company office, 416 Hillside Avenue.

FOUND GUILTY

Gertrude I. Bernard, Ganges, was fined $25 when found guilty on a careless driving charge arising out of an accident near the intersection of Yates and Blanchard Streets August 21.

OAK BAY COURT

Morley M. Smith, Vancouver, was sentenced to seven days in jail at a special sitting of Oak Bay police court when he pleaded guilty to a charge of being in control of a car while intoxicated. Magistrate Hall also suspended Smith's licence for three months.

Constable Harold Hutchins testified that he observed Smith driving in an erratic manner along Beach Drive early yesterday morning.

KEEPS GARDEN SECRET

W. Huskins, 1454 Edgeware Road, has the "secret" of growing king-size tomatoes, but he's going to keep it to himself.

As far as his garden is concerned, the proof is in the tomato. Yesterday he brought three of his "samples" to The Daily Colonist editorial rooms—they weighed a total of two pounds.

The "secret" has something to do with fertilizer. But just what that is—well, that's Mr. Huskins' business. He's not talking. The tomatoes, he said, were known as the "Break of Day" variety.

Crowding in Schools Relieved With Transfer of 100 Students

Overcrowding in elementary grades in the Greater Victoria school system has been taken care of by shifting about 100 pupils, J. F. K. English, municipal inspector of schools, said yesterday.

Students have just been released for distribution. First tourists to accept them were Miss Ethel Harper English. School population this year is approximately 10,500 against 10,263 last year and 9,885 in 1947. The increase has been mainly in the elementary grades.

An analysis of the increase in school population will be presented to the next meeting of the school board, Mr. English said.

SEEK EARLY STUDENT

Greater Victoria School Board is still looking for a former Victoria public school student older than 86.

He is wanted to cut the ribbon officially opening the new technical school unit at Victoria High School sometime in October. The date has not yet been set.

J. F. K. English, municipal school inspector, said four applications have been received so far, all 86 years or under, but the board thinks there may be an older student.

STICKERS ISSUED

Victoria's new "City of Beautiful Gardens" slogan is to be spread across the continent on automobile and baggage stickers. George Willis reported yesterday that new five-color stickers bearing the traditional beagull, together with flowers and a picture of the Legislature Build-

SMALL FIRE

City firemen extinguished a small fire in the home of Mrs. E. E. Henderson, 504 St. Charles Street, yesterday morning.

The blaze was caused by a short circuit in a refrigerator, firemen said. Damage was caused to a wall.

PAIR HELD FOR THEFT

A young red-headed Vancouver girl and a 24-year-old Victoria man were arrested by city detectives yesterday and charged with theft of a $60 suit from D'Alaird's Ltd., 708 Yates Street, Inspector Harry Mercer, chief of city detectives, said yesterday.

The pair were arrested by Detective Louis Callon who had been investigating the stolen suit report since last Thursday.

They will appear in city police court this morning.

Court Turns Down Appeal On Contributing Charge

Appeal Court yesterday turned down Maurice A. Freeman's appeal from his conviction and two-month sentence for contributing to juvenile delinquency.

In handing down judgment for Chief Justice Gordon McG. Sloan, who did not sit yesterday, Mr. Justice C. H. O'Halloran dated the Vancouver man's sentence back to the time of his conviction.

Freeman, who argued that he was victimized into giving food and shelter to a girl escaped from a detention home, has already spent four and a half months in custody. Sloan, who plans to appeal and cannot raise bail, he has to stay in custody while awaiting the appeal. Then if the appeal is unsuccessful, the sentence often dates from then instead of the time of conviction.

RESERVE JUDGMENT

Appeal justices reserved judgment on a second Vancouver case yesterday in an appeal by Raymond Heffner against a judgment that awarded $1,741 damages to R. J. Jessop after a traffic accident.

Mr. Justice James M. Coady had awarded the damages in Supreme Court last June 7 after finding Heffner to blame for the crash.

Today John Fontaine, Vancouver mechanic, will take his $41,404 breach of contract suit to Appeal Court. His claim for that amount from Don W. G. Rose and W. P. Nichols was turned down in Supreme Court February 18 by Mr. Justice H. B. Wood.

PREPARES APPEAL

Meanwhile in Vancouver, A. H. Fleishman is busy readying the appeal of Clyde Robertson who was convicted on two charges of attempted murder and a charge of robbery with violence May 10 in Vancouver. Mr. Justice A. D. Macfarlane sentenced him to life imprisonment.

Robertson was arrested February 18 after 28-year-old Norman Hay's first experience with the taxi-driving night shift almost ended in death. The passenger-bandit was convicted of blasting at the back of Hay's head with a sawed-off shotgun in a hold-up attempt. Not one pellet hit Hay.

He was also charged with jumping out of the car and attempting to fire the other barrel of the gun at a policeman.

Mr. Fleishman appeared in Appeal Court Tuesday to say he had been appointed by the Vancouver indigent committee to handle Robertson's appeal. He said he didn't mind appealing free but said he didn't like the costly job of having appeal books made up at his own expense.

Arterial Streets Are Not Well Marked in City

ARTERIAL highways in Victoria and its environs are not well marked and that has been one of the troubles leading to confusion, particularly with visiting motorists. It is one thing for those who live here and know the roads well, and another again to enter the network of arterial and other roads, marked and unmarked, as a stranger. The remission of the customary fine and suspension in a recent city traffic case on the ground that the streets were not adequately marked draws attention to a condition which should be remedied.

With arterial roads running in two main directions, one at right angles to the other, it is all the more important that Victoria take steps to mark these routes clearly and completely. To place stop signs at some intersections along a main route but not at others is a direct invitation to the kind of confusion which habitually results. Nor can the motorists be blamed for that. It is the corporation's job to label its highways in a manner all will understand.

Arterial road signs are not the only ones that deserve closer attention. The case of the school signs was argued recently and remedial action has since followed, with the clarification of school zones and the posting of more adequate signposts and road markings. Something of the same nature could be done for the arterial route intersections, so long as what is done is uniform and will apply throughout Greater Victoria. In the same way the Island Highway, which has its genesis in the city, could be far more clearly marked than it is, with advantage to the thousands of tourist cars which travel over the route in the Summer season. Intelligent signposting is a necessary civic courtesy, and the first step towards effective traffic direction.

Swindlers Exploit Ignorance of Canada

HOW little one may know of his neighbors is well exemplified by the case of the Minneapolis man charged with the sale of fraudulent stocks. Here was an individual who capitalized on the ignorance of others to an extent that is amazing in this day of widespread publicity. Even granted that citizens across the line are not intimately versed in the details of Canadian procedure, his success was based on such rock-and-bull deception as makes one doubtful of people ever getting to know one another really well.

If a lie has to be told, make it big; that was his theory, and it worked. According to his fantasy, Mr. Churchill was so grateful for the delivery of American destroyers that he persuaded the King to persuade the Canadian Parliament to persuade the British Columbia Government to hand over a vast tract of mineral land to his illusory development company, named after Prince Rupert and authorized under a non-existing Canadian secret-corporation act.

It is astonishing that investors, no matter how pecuniary their ambitions, should fall for such a tale, yet seemingly they did in large numbers. At a pinch the Americans among them might be excused for their credulity. Yet what is one to say about Canadian victims who know so little about the ways of their own land that they would believe such a concoction? Whatever financial loss they suffered they deserve. It should teach them a lesson badly needed.

Had Long Career in Municipal Service

THE tragically sudden passing of Alderman John Baxter, who had been the efficient secretary of eight chief magistrates of Victoria and a noted figure in civic affairs for quarter of a century, will be sincerely regretted in the community. A veteran of the Great War, Mr. Baxter joined the staff of the City Hall after its close and piloted many a newly-inducted Mayor in his first duties. His knowledge of civic affairs was unique, and his direct and forthright manner soon came to be appreciated.

Only a few months ago Mr. Baxter retired from the civic service to enter the lists successfully as candidate for aldermanic honors. Ill-health deprived him of the satisfaction of giving the service for which he was so well fitted by training and experience. He had been unable to attend many of the meetings for the purpose of which he had been elected, both on the council and in committee work at the City Hall.

Tributes in his memory testify to the affection with which the late Mr. Baxter was regarded not only in City Hall circles but also by a host of admirers and friends. Few lives spent in the public service have been so completely and meticulously filled.

CITY SUPPLIES ROADS

Sir,—Will you kindly publish the following: The agitation of the B.C. Electric Railway Co., Ltd., seems timely on their part. Those who are looking after the citizens' interests or welfare, as well as the B.C. Electric's, should bear in mind the large sums of money spent by the city and municipalities on improvements to all roads used by the buses.

This will result in greatly lessened overhead expense and in future will not show the loss due to poor roads.

The citizens should be credited with this saving. It is time the citizens got a break.

ARRANGED TRADE

Sir,—I would like to head this letter "Commonwealth Unity."

To the ordinary citizen who considers himself as possessing a moderate amount of common sense, the difficulty over the dollar-pound situation does not appear to be insurmountable.

The most pressing need today is Commonwealth unity. In fact, until we have a strong united Commonwealth, it would appear to be useless to think of United Nations.

I suppose the British Commonwealth is without doubt the richest organization, even today, as to raw materials, possibility of production, manpower, etc., and by achieving complete inter-Commonwealth trade we would be able to stand with the United States against all comers and thus establish permanent peace in the world.

If the matter is dealt with in a realistic manner, it would appear a comparative simple matter for the British and Canadian Governments to decide together the amount each needs to buy from the other, the British Government depositing with the Bank of England a sum in sterling equivalent to the needs of Canada; the Canadian Government depositing with the Bank of Canada a sum in dollars equivalent to the needs of Britain, each country drawing against this sum, if, as and when required. Similar arrangements could be made between the Commonwealth governments themselves. Should this create a shortage in any kind of goods where the demand exceeds the supply, some form of price control would be necessary. But we have had price control before and if we let things degenerate into another war, we will most certainly have it again and in a very much more severe form than the control suggested above.

The writer is not an upholder of the Social Credit Party. In fact he has always been of the opinion that Social Credit should have remained purely an economic system and not become a political party. But there are many ideas in Social Credit that could be used to very great advantage at the present time. It has been stated that Japan used some Social Credit ideas before the war for its own ends, to help flood the world with cheap Japanese goods. Even our own Government during the war, unwittingly perhaps, used the idea in part in their various subsidies.

C. R. DOWNMAN

Duncan, B.C.

COMMUTER'S PASS

Sir,—Since writing my last suggestions to the Greater Victoria Transportation Committee I have been talking to a friend about the matter. In my last letter I deplored wholeheartedly any idea of abolishing the pass altogether, a step which would cause very great hardship upon a very large number of people. I still, however, hold that the price of the pass should be raised to, say, $1.50, on the ground that its misuse has been the principal factor in the deficit, and owners of the pass should be made the principal sufferers.

My friend has suggested that the pass should be for one month's duration, as a minimum, and should bear the photograph of the owner. This could be done on a large scale at a small price and would eliminate all possibility of fraud and deception. In cases of transference, punishment by fine should be inflicted.

I still hold that a ten-minute service is unnecessarily frequent, except at rush hours.

Rich Days

Welcome to you, rich Autumn days.

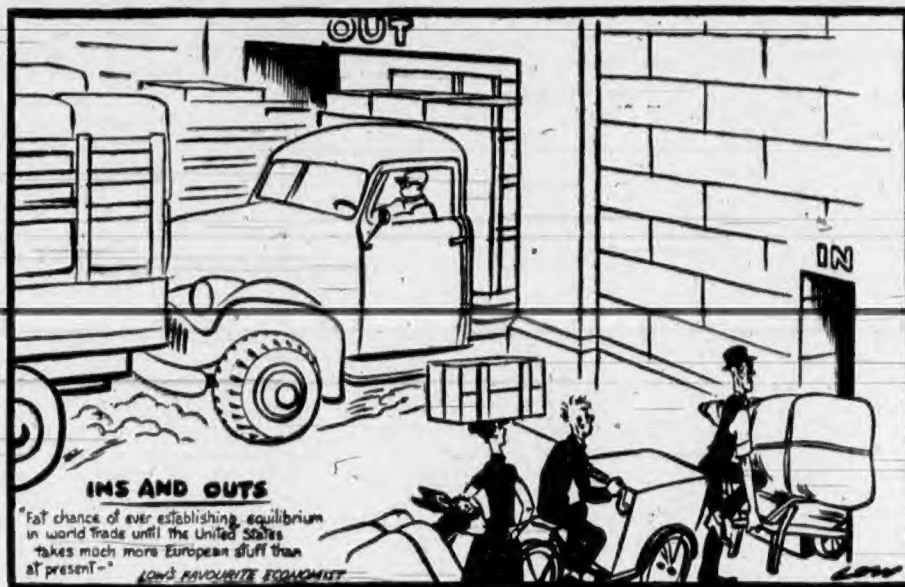

Ere comes the cold, leaf-pricking wind;
When golden streaks are seen in fields.

With mellow pears that cheat our teeth,
Which melt that tongues may suck them in;
With cherries red, and blue-black plums
Now sweet and soft from stone to skin;
And woodnuts rich, to make us go
Into the loveliest lanes we know.

Thinking Aloud

of shoes—and ships—and sealing was—of cabbages and kings.

By TOM TAYLOR

SECOND thoughts are best, they say, although that proposition is at least open to doubt. By the same token, though, second glances should be equal in virtue.

What is not open to doubt in this connection is the difficulty of finding what you saw in the first place. If it was in a newspaper some perverse imp in your eyeballs prevents you from spotting it easily on your second try.

At least, that is my constant experience. Time and again I read some item, recall it a couple of days later and thumb through the pages in desperate search. It becomes an agonizing business. Somehow or other my eye simply won't spot what I'm after.

Just an hour ago I must have spent a good twenty minutes pawing through half a dozen issues for a news item I thought had such a big headline I couldn't miss it. I finally gave up; my inside was beginning to boil with impatience.

Yet when I read the item two days ago it leaped instantly to my attention, even though I was giving the paper only a cursory once-over.

Which might suggest that in this field of endeavor the first glance is the best.

***

It's true, of course, that if you do succeed in finding what you are after it doesn't always turn out to be quite the same as it appeared the first time. There's more to it, perhaps, or less. You read it with a different slant and its meaning changes, or seems to do so.

I suppose this is where the second-best idea comes in.

Last week I tried out the theory on the film, "One Night of Love," the picture that set a pattern for good music supplied via the silver screen. Well, I didn't go deliberately to compare my reaction with my recollection, although at the back of my head I wondered if I should think it so outstanding as I did when first I saw it. That would be 12 or 15 years ago, I guess. Primarily I wanted to hear Grace Moore sing again.

I wouldn't say now it was a super-duper film. This time I thought the plot typically stupid, although redeemed by the glorious voice of Miss Moore. Probably I was so mesmerized by her 12 years ago I never noticed the story angle.

It didn't matter, anyway. Grace Moore's voice sounded as rich and true as I remembered it over the years, and that was what really counted. The world of music lost a fine artist when she was so unfortunately killed in a plane accident. How fine you may judge by listening to some of the warblers who nowadays display their tonals in close-ups.

I guess it's hard to sing and look pretty at the same time. Miss Moore managed the combination passably well, but some of her successors should remain anonymous voices.

There was one more second-thought discovery, although it wasn't new. The film seemed to run its course more quickly than before. This is a customary experience, and it visits everyone who sits through a film twice. The second round always appears to telescope itself.

It's different with a book, now. A second-reading thrusts forward things you skipped the first time. Maybe it is a piece of description you passed over in a hurry to get to the meat of the story; perhaps a facet of the hero's, or heroine's, character you didn't appreciate before. Whatever it is you're inclined to dwell on, and there's no impression of shrinkage.

Nobody reads through a book a second time unless he wants to mull over it leisurely, in any case. So when it's a matter of books probably a second glance is best!

Even with a newspaper, to get back to the point of entrance, a second scrutiny often pays dividends. People scramble through newspapers with indecent haste and often finish up with a false notion of what they contain. Judging by some of the comments that reach this office no other conclusion is possible.

If you're going to read a news item twice over, however, do it at the same sitting. Otherwise you're apt to find, as I do, that it has annoyingly elusive properties.

Scrimshanking on Health

By RAYMOND MOLEY

WASHINGTON.—A factor in the debate on health insurance, perhaps because it implies an important absence of human compassion, has been greatly neglected. That factor is the extent to which the demand for medical care will increase when the government foots the bill. For this reason, the cost of government care must remain a mystery until it is tried. For the real amount of medical attention that would be needed in a welfare state is locked in the subconscious of millions of hypochondriacs.

If, as some of the milder government health plans propose, the cost is to be met by a tax on all prospective beneficiaries, there is bound to be a vast element of unfairness. For the conscientious person who seeks medical care only in case of genuine illness or threat of illness is taxed to pay for those who either imagine illness or deliberately feign disability. And when absenteeism because of illness carries with it some form of additional benefit, all taxpayers are charged for the vagaries or pretenses of a few.

The London Economist coins a word, "benefititis," to describe the practice of getting benefits without real need. It also brings to our attention a British word which is not well known to us, "scrimshanking." This word means the deliberate exaggeration of a symptom which marks an illness that enables a person to take time off, with benefits. It may be conscious or unconscious. It may consist of accentuating a cough, a headache, a limp or the complaint of a pain.

The Economist surveys this subject in a remarkably temperate article and notes the great rise in sickness absenteeism in Royal Ordnance Factories in the past year. Since higher sickness benefits were introduced in July, 1948, sickness absenteeism has gone up rapidly in the mines, as well as in government ordnance plants.

Such absenteeism cuts two ways. It means still lower production and it means a higher charge on the nation's budget. The effect extends beyond those cases in which workers unnecessarily draw benefits for absences due to imaginary or feigned illness. Because the fact that such deceit is known to others, all worker morale suffers and production falls generally.

This effect of government medicine has been noted wherever it has been adopted. In the State of Washington it is noteworthy that trips to the doctor or the hospital have risen at an alarming rate since the government has gone into the business.

This is not to suggest that people who need medical attention should be deterred by high private charges, nor that it is not desirable that everybody should consult doctors for preventive purposes. There is need for wide propaganda favoring visits to doctors before illness becomes serious. But there is only one means of checking the malingerer or the scrimshanker, and that is through his pocketbook.

Medical care should be ample, accessible and cheap. To that end the medical profession should address itself as a means of self-preservation. But a state system which rewards people whose illnesses are phony is unfair to those who must bear the tax burden.

Australian War Memorial

By THOMAS DUNBARIN
Australian Press Attache, Ottawa
(In The Legionary)

AUSTRALIA has something to teach Canada in running a war museum, according to Colonel C. P. Stacey, director of the Canadian Army's historical section, who has placed this revolutionary idea before the Massey Royal Commission. The members were so interested that they asked him to prepare for them a statement on Australia's National War Memorial.

The Ottawa Military Museum is under-sized and there is much to be said for a first-class Canadian War Museum in the capital.

The irony of it is that away back in 1929, Canada had plans and blueprints for a War Memorial which would be a War Archives and a Gallery of War Pictures as well as a museum. Today Canberra has its War Memorial on these very lines. Ottawa has its War Memorial in three pieces:

- (1) The Military Museum;
- (2) Collections of war documents and material in the Archives;
- (3) The pictorial record of the two wars at the National Gallery.

The Australian War Memorial, a magnificent, spacious stone building—easily the finest in Canberra—was not completed till 1941, when the Second World War was well on its way. Weapons, equipment and material relics are displayed in large, well-lit halls, with paintings on the walls.

The Memorial also contains 30,000 volumes of war records and histories in its great library. Logbooks of Australian vessels, war diaries, orders, reports are all carefully preserved and indexed. The numbers grow from day to day.

In addition to the works of Australian war artists there are hundreds of thousands of air and other photographs, historic maps, models of battlefields and of historic scenes.

In the central courtyard is the Pool of Remembrance. Behind the Pool is the Hall of Memory, with a fine dome.

There is ample room for expansion, for the Memorial has a site of 30 acres. It lies at the foot of Mount Ainslie and the Memorial faces the Australian Parliament House across a wide valley. The length of the building is 390 feet, its width 190 and the height of the top of the dome 117 feet. The total floor space is 74,000 square feet.

The floor space of the Ottawa Museum is 5,280 square feet plus 3,000 feet of storage and workshop room, or 8,280 square feet in all.

Australia's Official War Historian, Mr. Gavin Long, and his assistants work at the War Memorial. There they have all the material right under their hands.

The building cost $800,000. The cost of maintaining and running the Memorial for 12 months ended June 30, 1948, was $89,040. The sum provided for the 12 months which ended on June 30, was $115,200. Estimates for the Ottawa Museum for 1948-50 are $10,900.

It costs an awful lot less to keep a war well in memory than it does to fight one.

Fun, Fact and Fiction

The dramatic critic started to leave in the middle of the second act.

Many people will remember how the celebrated Theodore Hook, of an earlier day, deflated the pompous gentlemen of his era by walking up to them and demanding: "Pray, sir, are you anybody of importance?"

A stranger once tried to embarrass the extremely imposing British actor, Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree, by repeating these words to him. But Sir Herbert's wit was equal to his imposing appearance.

Observation Car: By G. B.

TWO agitators who are not particularly fond of the sea have very little to say about a remote village on the West Coast of Vancouver Island. After making plans to address loggers and sawmill employees in the community, which can be reached only by boat, they asked an acquaintance what sort of a reception they might receive from the operator of the sawmill. "I do not think you will have any trouble there," the man replied. The two men left to charter a small vessel for the trip, and he slipped away to a radio-telephone to call the village. It took only a few seconds to locate the mill operator and inform him what was in the wind. "I shall be ready for them, in fact there will be no complaint about the reception," he chuckled. When the visitors arrived the next day, the mill man was on hand to greet them with a ready smile and a hearty handshake. Much to their surprise, he offered them the hospitality of his home and beds for the night. He told them to make arrangements for their meeting, and gather at his house for refreshments as soon as possible. A few hours later he had poured so many drinks for them that they were snoring peacefully on the floor of the parlor. Meetings were far from their minds. The following morning the owner of the chartered boat called at the house and told the mill operator he had to pull out before a change in the tide. He and the host awakened the unconscious guests with great difficulty and revived them with large cups of steaming black coffee. "How about your meeting?" the mill man asked, with a wink to the boat owner. "What meeting?" How did we get here?" one of the agitators mumbled. "Unless you feel like swimming, we must pull out within 15 minutes before the tide changes," the boat man remarked. They helped the suffering pair to the wharf. The voyage home was so rough that they laid on the floor of the cabin and moaned all the way.

The Packsack

By GREGORY CLARK

A CANADIAN who makes his living writing novels says that he still feels shy whenever he is obliged to write the name of Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg or any of the other Canadian cities into his stories.

In the present, that is. Curiously enough, if the story is about the past, or is historical, he feels no such compunction about naming our cities. But there seems to be something prosaic about Canada's cities that debars them from the romantic realm in literature.

What we need is some American or English novelist, who has spent all his life in Manchester, Rochester, England, or Seattle, Wash., to come to Montreal or Vancouver and write his novel with a present day setting in those cities. For it is only Canadians, apparently, who feel self-conscious about their own big towns. Men and women are the same size, regardless of where they live. A New Yorker is no larger, and has no more fingers or toes, feels no differently, has no other perceptions of color or music or sentiment, than a citizen of The Pas, Manitoba.

For that matter, the mayor of New York or Chicago is no busier than the mayor of Montreal or any other Canadian city. A man can do just so much in a day. And he does it. True, there may be a few more 000's in the financial budget of New York than in that of Victoria, B.C.; but since everything is in proportion in this life, the man in New York and the man in Victoria is doing the same thing, precisely, in being mayor: to wit, collecting about the same amount from each citizen, whether in New York or Victoria, and then spending it. It may well be that citizens of some self-effacing Canadian cities pay more per annum for living there than New Yorkers pay for living amidst all that hubbub.

A good thing to remember is that office desks and hotel beds are much the same size the world over. A desk must be large enough for a man's elbows and not too large to reach across. They are the same size in London, Hongkong and St. Louis. Beds are standard, too. Men are pretty-average, everywhere.

It is so called from Mount Atlas or the mythical island of Atlantis, which was supposed to separate the Old World from the New.

Looking Back

Through Colonist Files

25 YEARS AGO—Hon. J. H. King, Federal Minister of Public Works, who will remain in British Columbia until the arrival of Prime Minister Mackenzie King, has been inspecting the big Esquimalt drydock now under construction.

50 YEARS AGO—Under instructions from Mr. C. A. Vernon, the owner, Mr. Thomas Hooper has prepared plans for a handsome three-story-and-basement building on the northwest corner of Government and Broughton.

85 YEARS AGO—The interior of the Island has been so completely a terra incognita till this summer that comparatively little is known of the varieties of game which inhabit it.

Jury Ordered To Probe Riot After Concert

ALBANY, N.Y., Sept. 14 (INS).—Governor Thomas E. Dewey tonight ordered a sweeping grand jury probe of the rioting that followed a concert by pro-Russian singer Paul Robeson near Peekskill on September 4.

Dewey declared flatly that Communist groups "obviously did provoke this incident." He added that veterans and others who turned out to express their disapproval of the meeting "obviously fell into a Communist bear trap."

The governor specifically directed that the special grand jury find out "whether the Communist-led guard forces are a quasi-military force."

Dewey acted after a conference with the Westchester County district attorney and sheriff and the superintendent of state police.

"My conclusions are that the facts are simple and ugly."

"These followers of Red totalitarianism which teaches violence and the suppression of individual liberty were themselves made the victims of lawlessness and the suppression of fundamental rights."

The governor asserted that any violation of the rights of free speech and assembly of one group "is injury to the rights of all."

He continued: "Wherever such a violation occurs it must be scorned and repudiated even though the incident were deliberately provoked."

Dewey said that the Communist groups "obviously did provoke this incident."

The governor specifically instructed the district attorney to make "a complete, unlimited and exhaustive grand jury investigation of all the incidents which occurred."

The governor said New York State will not tolerate "storm troops or private militia, whether in white sheets, brown shirts, or military clothing."

Oddities

PROVIDENCE, R.I., Sept. 14 (AP).—Drivers of pleasure cars in Providence simply won't be courteous to pedestrians.

Judges in the city's highway-courtesy campaign tried for a solid hour to find a single courteous driver among 1,000 motorists.

All they found were five courteous drivers of commercial vehicles, two of whom got $5 prizes.

But Judge William B. Knowlton said he could find not one ordinary motorist worthy of a courtesy award.

CHARLESTON, W.Va., Sept. 14 (AP).—The entire Childress family is going to school these days—including the father, a 61-year-old retired army officer.

Maj. T. J. Childress and his 18-year-old son, Joe, enrolled as freshmen yesterday at Morris Harvey College.

His other son, Jack, 20, enrolled as a sophomore.

The major's wife, who has a degree from Morris Harvey, is teaching in an elementary school.

Said the major: "I made up my mind not to sit around and grow old while everyone else is in school."

TROY, N.Y., Sept. 14 (AP).—A five-year-old girl who wanted a "real live" baby to replace her doll gave Troy a brief kidnap scare.

Mrs. Edward Roberts came out of the Troy Public Library yesterday to find her four-month-old son, David, and his carriage missing. In their place was a small carriage and a doll.

Fifteen minutes later, police found little Judy Wells pushing David in his carriage two blocks from the library.

"Dejobbed" Nigerian Writes Painful Plea

LONDON, Sept. 14 (AP).—A British Colonial Office of Nigeria reported receiving the following plaintive plea from a West African who unexpectedly found himself "disemployed."

"Dear Sir:—On opening this epistle you will behold the work of a dejobbed person and a very bewildered and much childrenized gentleman, who was violently dejobbed in a twinkling by your good self."

HORRIBLE STATE

"For heaven's sake, sir, consider this catastrophe as falling on your own head, and remind yourself on waking home at the moon's end to five savage wives and 16 voracious children with your pocket filled with non-existent pounds, shillings and pence and a solitary sapphire; pity my horrible state."

"As to the reason given by yourself enquire for my dejobment, the incrimination was laziness. No, sir. It were impossible that a man like myself can have a lazy atom in his mortal frame, and a sudden departure of 11 pounds has left me on the verge of destitution and despair."

"I hope this vision of horror will enrich your dreams this night and the Good Angel will melt and pulverize your heart of neither milstone so that you will awaken with such alacrity to rejobulate your servant. So mote it be, amen."

Officials in London did not know whether the native was reassociated with his job.

Synod Lower House Approves More Lenient Rule on Divorce

HALIFAX, Sept. 14 (CP).—The Lower House of the 17th General Synod of the Church of England in Canada voted today to permit the "innocent party" to a divorce to remarry and keep all church services and sacraments.

A motion endorsing this action, sponsored by the Diocese of Calgary, needs approval of the House of Bishops before a move can be made to amend the church's law on marriage and divorce.

The vote in the Lower House—a close 92-76—was preceded by a vigorous debate.

The Synod also adopted a report asking that the church's executive council "devise ways and means" of augmenting pensions paid retired bishops and clergymen and $100 for widows.

Third decision to come out of today's session was the adoption of an optional marriage ceremony, omitting in all places the bride's promise to "obey." This change, one of several church prayer-book alterations contained in the report of the committee on revision of the book, may be used by clergymen subject to their further consideration of it. This consideration, however, does not delay its use.

TO REVISE CANON
The Calgary resolution on remarriage, introduced by Rev. W. H. H. Crump of Calgary, read:

"That this Synod asks the General Synod to revise its canon on marriage and divorce by legislating to permit the innocent party to a divorce to remarry and to have the benefit of all the services and sacraments of the church and in this case immediately to set up church courts to decide which—if either—is the innocent party."

A General Synod last considered the remarriage question at Winnipeg in 1946. At that time, the entire issue was deferred.

At different times since 1945, he had mentioned to John Bracken, who retired last year as party leader, and to Mr. Drew his wish "to be relieved of my responsibilities so that I might return to the practice of my profession."

"But each time I have permitted myself to be dissuaded from that course," said Mr. Bell.

"It is not possible for me to delay longer my resumption of the practice of law and it would appear that now is the time when I can retire from my present position with the least disruption of the continuity of party work."

Mr. Drew accepted the resignation with regret.

Call Off Voyage In Sea-Going Car

HALIFAX, Sept. 14 (CP).—Mr. and Mrs. Ben Carlin, the couple who bought a war surplus amphibious jeep to travel around the world from Halifax, decided today to call off the trip for this season at least. The long stretch of cold grey Atlantic between here and the Azores, where they expected to make their first landfall, is getting rougher and more hazardous each day.

The Carlins, who first attempted a crossing from New Jersey last year, made another unsuccessful attempt September 2 from here. The adventurous pair was forced to turn their craft "Half Safe" back to Halifax after losing spare gas tanks which were being towed astern.

MONTREAL, Sept. 14 (CP).—R. E. Staver, president of Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company of Canada, Ltd., announced the retirement of J. E. Riley, secretary of the company. Mr. Riley joined the company at trail in 1915.

LAKE LOUISE, Alta., Sept. 14 (CP).—Hon. E. F. Willis, Manitoba Public Works Minister, today was elected president of the Canadian-Good Roads Association at the 36th annual convention here. He succeeds Hon. Antonio Talbot, Quebec Roads Minister, who becomes honorary president.

Other officers elected included Hon. J. T. Douglas, Saskatchewan

Highways and Transportation Minister, first vice-president; Hon. M. D. R. W. Nova Scotia Highways and Public Works Minister, second vice-president; Hon. E. C. ## Grizzled Miners Sold On Fancy Cooking Class

VAL D'OR, Que., Sept. 14 (CP).—If you think they're pantywaists, keep your thoughts to yourself or you may get a skillet in the face.

It's a fact, though, that a goodly number of Val D'Or's grizzled prospectors, veterans of the Northern Quebec mining fields, are going to take a course in household science.

Nothing ridiculous at all about it, they say. They tell you they're sold on the idea of vitamins, good for them and therefore good for the tough business of prospecting.

LEARN ABOUT SALADS
And they want to learn about salads and the do-dads of fancier cooking; they may even go in for baking cakes.

There's one all-powerful desire being whispered about. Chick Bidd-good, one of the younger ore searchers, is famous for his moose-rib roasts. Now the old timers are going to show him up or else.

The household science course is one of a half dozen scheduled for the night school soon to be opened in the new Protestant County High School in Val D'Or, which opened for regular classes September 14.

The night school courses will emphasize bilingualism and business training, as well as household science, and there is no age limit placed on students.

There are playing fields and a quarter-mile cinder track and—something new in school necessities—a one-stand electrified wire fence.

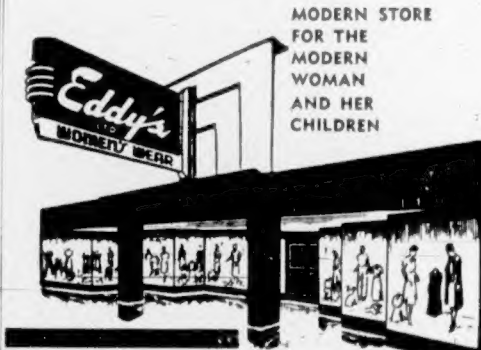

The fence is to dissuade bears living in the neighboring bush from emulating Mary's little lamb.

Fishermen Verify American Vessels Poaching Inside Three-Mile Limit

PORT ALBERNI, Sept. 14.—Einar Anderson and Lorne Meyer, who have been fishing on the West Coast of Vancouver Island for 20 years and own their own trolling vessels, made a special trip from Bamfield Tuesday night to verify reports that appeared in The Daily Colonist regarding breaches of the International Fisheries Act, and the entering of the three-mile limit by American vessels on August 29 and 30.

Reports carried in The Daily Colonist and Vancouver papers did not reach them until their arrival in Bamfield Monday from fishing in the same area where these violations were reported to have taken place. They state that many boats and crews will verify the authenticity of the reports, and are prepared to make affidavits to this effect. When they left here Tuesday night, they carried affidavits with them to be filled by fishermen said to be witnesses to the poaching by American vessels.

PUT OUTSIDE LIMIT

Kiner Anderson states that Sunday, September 11, the American vessel, the Sonja, was put outside the three-mile limit by the Federal Fisheries patrol vessel Howay. Anderson states that he has seen American vessels within a mile of the beach or as he describes it, "within a stone's throw."

RAPID OPERATION
Fishermen in this area, who are well acquainted with the American and Canadian vessels engaged in setting say that with the mechanical means on any seine boat, that it is possible to set and return the net to the boat in 30 minutes on a dry set, that is a set where no fish are taken. On a wet set where any amount of fish are taken, they give the time as not longer than one hour and a half.

The difference between the dry set and the wet set, being that in the wet set fish must be braided, entailing some extra time. They point out, however, that two boats or three of the same company are fishing together. All three make a heavy set, that all three boats can haul fish, from the same seine, thereby cutting the time to a minimum. Far less than the time required to make the set, as stated by Mr. Barrie in his denial of poaching on the West Coast.

HAVE RADIOPHONES

Every trawler and seiner on the West Coast is equipped with radio-phones, and when the fleet is assembled at any given point or area, radio gossip is general, and as bad as any party line that ever existed ashore. Trollers are up in arms that they should be accused of making false reports, and specially these vessels and their owners that notified patrol vessels of the Fisheries Department, that these violations were taking place. Among them are the trawler Narvik (owner "Sig" Sigmothe); Loch Monar (Peter Nichol, owner); and the Storm (Angus Mackay, owner), besides many others who have not returned from the grounds yet.

WARNINGS GIVEN

They claim that every poacher is warned by the patrol vessel in the morning that it is leaving a certain place at a certain time, and will be running a course defining the three-mile limit, and warning all seiners to be outside the line, and to use the course they are running as a guide to the three-mile limit. They would recommend the use of a plane as in past years where flagrant violators of the fishing law were trapped hands down. They insist that if this condition continues, that the International Fisheries Commission should set quotas for Americans and Canadians as is the case in the areas fished for halibut.

Seeks Seamen's Benefits

E. V. Forrester, chairman of the British Columbia Council of the Canadian Merchant Navy Veterans' Association, arrived in Victoria yesterday to form a local group of merchant navy veterans and "bring before the public the aims and objects of the association."

"We are trying to secure pensions for Canadian merchant seamen disabled because of war service, hospitalization, medical and dental treatment and Veterans' Land Act and housing benefits," declared Mr. Forrester.

"We are simply trying to get for the merchant seamen who served in dangerous waters during the

Vessel By-Passes City, Brings Raw Deal Claim

—Marine News

The Chamber of Commerce, and particularly the harbor committee, is up in arms over "a raw deal" involving the Donaldson Line vessel Corrientes which was forced to by-pass Victoria and proceed to Vancouver—carrying to the Mainland city a 175-ton general cargo destined for this city.

R. N. B. Cumberland of Robert Consolidated Ltd., local agents for the line—said yesterday the ship did not call here yesterday as had been scheduled because it was claimed there would be no longshoremen available at Ogden Point docks to handle unloading of the cargo.

The ship was scheduled to reach Vancouver early yesterday afternoon. The Victoria cargo will have to be "trans-shipped" to this city, at a cost of approximately $2,000.

CAUSE OF SHORTAGE

According to information received here yesterday, lack of longshoremen at this port to handle the Corrientes' Victoria cargo was a result of decisions made by an organization known as the "gang allocation committee" of Vancouver—under jurisdiction of the Shipping Federation.

The five longshoremen gangs assigned to Victoria and the south end of Vancouver Island yesterday were busy working on two lumber ships here, a freighter at James Island and another ship at Cowichan Bay.

The group sent to Cowichan Bay, Mr. Cumberland explained, was sent to load 1,000,000 board feet of lumber. He estimated the longshoremen would be able to spend about three and a half hours on that job yesterday—which would be just a drop in the bucket (so far as what lumber could be handled in such a short time). That gang, he claimed, could have been diverted to look after the Corrientes cargo at this port.

SEES NO SHORTAGE

Walter S. Miles, president of the local chamber, was confident "there is no shortage of longshoremen here." He described the action as "a first-hand example of giving Victoria the go-by."

Mr. Cumberland said it was to his knowledge, the first time a deep-sea cargo ship—making regular scheduled calls to this port—had been given such treatment.

The Vancouver "gang allocation committee," he said, was responsible for assigning cargo handling jobs for longshoremen of the Lower British Columbia Coastal area.

"Prior to the war," he continued, "allocation of longshoremen was done through local offices of the stevedoring companies. This arrangement proved most satisfactory for all concerned."

WORD SPREADS RAPIDLY
Word of the "go-by" spread rapidly around the city's waterfront circles yesterday, and among those most perturbed about the situation were Mr. Miles, Mr. Cumberland, and Tom Denny, head of the Chamber of Commerce harbor committee. It was deemed certain that direct action of some sort will be taken almost immediately.

SOCKEYE CYCLE UP

An increase of 20 per cent in this year's Fraser River sockeye salmon cycle in British Columbia was reported in a statement yesterday at Hollingham, Wash., by Lloyd Royal, acting administrative director of the International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission.

The commission, charged with rehabilitating the Fraser salmon fisheries, completed fishways at Hells Gate Gorge in time for the 1948 run. This had been the first year the effectiveness of the fishways could be tested on a basis of commercial catch.

Through August 31, says the report, the American catch was 1,034,000 sockeye, the Canadian 933,000, a total of 1,977,000. Four years ago the parent cycle yielded 960,000 to the Canadians and 718,000 to the Americans, a total of 1,678,000.

"The catch figures as of August

31," the report stated, "show that U.S. fishermen have taken 51.8 per cent of the total. However, the total existing differential of 36 per cent in favor of the American fisheries should decline before the end of the season."

Although few sockeyes are taken on Puget Sound, Canadians catch a substantial number on the Fraser during September.

The commission attempts each year to divide the catch equally among the two fleets.

Social Life Absent For Many Londoners

LONDON, Sept. 14 (Reuters).—Many of London's women are too tired to do anything at the end of the day except go to the movies, according to a survey here.

The survey was prepared by Mrs. Muriel Smith, community centres director of the London Council of Social Services, and it revealed that for many people social life does not exist.

"Very few men or women took part in any organization—religious, political, educational, recreational or social," the survey reported.

"We are surprised to find that many people said they had lived in the same apartment for many years and had never spoken to their neighbors except to say 'Good morning'."

Special Breads Add Interest to Meals

One of the hardest parts of cooking day after day is the decision of what to fix. And one of the easiest ways to get your menu out of a rut is to add a special bread to a meal. A sweet, new coffee cake will get your family down for breakfast without a second call. Fresh, hot muffins at luncheon or supper will perk up appetites in no time. Crisp, brown rolls will enhance your dinner menu.

Remember how many good restaurants base their fine reputations on the quality and the variety of the good breads they serve with their meals? It's a trade secret you can incorporate in your meals at home to give them "the look of the professional."

GOLDEN MUFFINS: 1 cup sifted flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1 egg, well beaten; 2/3 cup milk, 1/4 cup molasses, 8 tablespoons melted shortening, 1 cup bran flakes.

Sift flour with baking powder and salt. Combine egg, milk, molasses and melted shortening; add to flour mixture, stirring only until flour disappears. Fold in bran flakes. Bake in greased muffin pans in moderately hot oven (425 degrees F.) 20 to 25 minutes. Yield: nine 2 1/2-inch muffins.

SUGAR CRUMB COFFEE CAKE: 1 tablespoon melted butter, 2 tablespoons brown sugar, 1 cup oven-popped rice cereal, 2 cups sifted flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup sugar, 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg, 2 tablespoons shortening, 1 egg, beaten, 1 cup milk. For topping, mix together butter, brown sugar and finely crushed cereal. Sift together flour, baking powder, salt, sugar and nutmeg. Cut in shortening until mixture is crumbly. Combine egg and milk. Add to flour mixture, stirring only until flour is moistened. Spread in greased pan and sprinkle with topping. Bake in moderately hot oven (425 degrees F.) about 15 minutes. Yield: Nine servings (10 x 10-inch pan).

BRAN BUTTERHORN: 1 cup scalded milk, 1/4 cup shortening, 1/3 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 cup bran (ready-to-eat bran), 1 cake compressed or 1 package granular yeast, 2 eggs, well-beaten, 3/4 cups sifted flour.

Combine milk, shortening, sugar, salt and bran; cool to lukewarm. Soften yeast in this mixture. Add eggs; beat thoroughly. Add flour; mix to soft dough. Cover; let stand ten minutes. Knead on lightly-floured surface. Place in greased bowl. Let rise in warm place until double in bulk. Punch down. Divide dough in thirds; roll into circles nine inches in diameter. Cut in triangles and roll to form butterhorns. Arrange on greased baking sheet. Cover. Let rise until double in bulk. Bake in moderately hot oven (400 degrees F.) about 15 minutes. Yield: 3 1/2 dozen butterhorns.

Fried Tomatoes In Cream Gravy

By THE CHIEF

While back, one of my unknown correspondents in Cincinnati wrote me about some tomato pancakes I had described. She suggested another tomato dish that sounded so good I tried it out. It's wonderful, and I am delighted to pass it along to you—with many thanks to the unknown donor.

He—or she—writes: "Thought you might like a little variation. Instead of using batter mixture, try using cornmeal or fine cracker crumbs to coat the tomato slices. Then fry until a beautiful golden in your favorite fat. Use the fat left in the skillet for cream gravy, which you can pour over the fried tomatoes. This mixture is bad for the waistline, but good to the taste."

Grapes Good in Pies

In spite of the dry weather last Spring, forecasts tell us there will be a fairly good crop of grapes this Fall. This is good news for housewives since most would consider their preserve shelves incomplete without at least a few jars of grape jam or jelly. Home-made grape juice is another popular product made from this versatile fruit and more homemakers are preserving the elusive flavor of both blue and green grapes in this manner.

Most people realize how good grapes are when preserved or served raw on the bunch but comparatively few people use them as a base for pies, whips, roly-polys, frozen desserts or as a sauce to be served on blanc manges, cottage puddings or other light desserts. Taken all in all, there are few fruits which can be used in as many different and appetizing ways.

The home economists of the consumer section, Dominion Department of Agriculture, have been busy testing recipes using grapes and are passing along some which have been approved. The grape chiffon pie is particularly popular with all who tasted it and for those who wish a colorful party dessert, brimful of flavor, this will be a happy choice. The other recipe for grape pie is more easily made and not quite so rich but equally delicious. The filling is sufficient for one nine-inch pie shell or 12 large individual tarts which may be topped with a lattice of pastry, a meringue or whipped cream. For a special treat for the whole family, be sure to make at least one grape pie this season.

GRAPE CHIFFON PIE:

8 cups blue grapes—1/2 cup sugar, 1 tablespoon gelatine, 1/4 cup cold water, 1/4 cup whipped cream, 2 egg whites, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/4 cup sugar.

1 nine-inch baked pie shell. Wash grapes and separate skins and pulp. Heat pulp to boiling point and boil gently for five minutes. Rub through a sieve to remove seeds. Combine pulp and skins and cook together five minutes longer. Add sugar, stirring until dissolved. Meanwhile, soak gelatine in the cold water for five minutes. Add soaked gelatine to hot grape mixture, stirring until thoroughly dissolved. Chill until mixture is thick and syrupy. Whip cream and fold into grape mixture. Make a meringue of the egg whites, salt and the 1/4 cup sugar and fold into grape mixture. Pour into baked pie shell and chill until set. Yield: One nine-inch pie.

GRAPE PIE:

8 cups blue grapes, stemmed, 1/4 to 1/2 cup sugar, depending on tartness of grapes, 2 tablespoons cornstarch.

Dash of salt. Wash grapes and separate skins and pulp. Heat pulp to boiling point and boil gently for five minutes, then rub pulp through a sieve to remove seeds. Combine pulp and skins and cook together five minutes longer. Mix sugar, cornstarch and salt and blend smooth with some of the juice from grape mixture. Stir into the remaining grape mixture and cook until thick, stirring frequently, about two minutes. Pour mixture into an unbaked nine-inch pie shell. Cover with a lattice top of pastry and bake in a very hot oven, 425 degrees F., until pastry is golden brown, about 30 minutes. Serve cold. Yield: One nine-inch pie or 12 large tarts.

GRAPE JUICE:

Wash, stem and crush grapes. Add water, allowing 3 1/2 cups per six-quart basket of grapes. Bring to boil and boil, covered, 15 minutes. Strain through a moistened jelly bag. If desired, add sugar to taste. Reheat to boiling point. Pour into hot containers, leaving headspace. Process in the boiling water bath for ten minutes.

NOTE—A white sediment may form in the kettle while standing after straining or in containers during storage. This sediment contains valuable minerals and should not be discarded. Shake well before using to distribute the sediment.

Special Party Dessert

By THE CHIEF

Do you know that ice cream of ice creams, Italian spumoni? It is always done in Italy in special molds, which here you would probably have to get made to order unless some Italian suppliers had them in stock. But it is perfectly all right to use individual covered aluminum jelly molds, which should be well chilled before using.

First, make your outside mixture. Blend four tablespoons of cornstarch in half a cup of milk, taken from a quart. Then add the balance of the milk, with five egg yolks and one and a quarter cups of sugar. Blend smoothly in a deep saucepan, cooking slowly over hot water. Stir constantly. After about ten minutes, or when the mixture thickens and comes to a boil, remove from the fire, stir in two tablespoons of chopped almonds, and cool. Then pour into freezing tray. When firm, but not hard, remove from the tray.

While the first mixture is freezing, make number two. Pour half a pint of heavy cream in a bowl, well chilled, and whip until firm. Add half a cup of sugar, and whip until very thick. Chop up six maraschino cherries and two tablespoons of candied orange peel very fine, and blend them smoothly into the whipped cream. Put the bowl in the refrigerator to keep the mixture firm and stiff while you prepare the molds.

Remove the first mixture from freezing tray and line the molds with about half an inch of this custard. This is why it should not be too hard. Leave a hollow in the centre of the mold, and fill this with whipped cream mixture. Cover with first custard mixture. Place the covers on the molds, and put the molds in the freezing compartment with controls set for freezing.

When ready to serve, unmold on fancy plates, and garnish with more maraschino cherries and strips of orange peel.

This is a very pretty and very delicious dinner party dessert. Usually it is served with sponge cake fingers.

Fish Paprika

By THE CHIEF

You've heard plenty about "Chicken Paprika" and "Veal Paprika"—but what about fish paprika, done in the Hungarian style? In Hungary they use the firm white fish that come from Lake Balaton. Here we'll use fresh cod fish.

Have two slices of fresh cod cut one-and-one-half inches thick, and wipe them well with a cloth wrung out in cold water. Melt three tablespoons of butter in a kettle, add six white onions peeled and sliced. Let cook, stirring, until soft but not brown. Stir in two teaspoons of paprika and a teaspoon of salt. Put the fish in the pot, cover, and let simmer for half an hour—the fish should leave the bone. Remove fish to a casserole, throw away the bone, add half a cup of sour cream to the pan gravy, blend well, and pour over fish.

Battle of the Pamphlets Shaping Up in Saanich

A pamphlet war may be shaping up in Saanich's explosive Ward Six.

Following circulation of a printed pamphlet by Councillor William C. Kersey, who has called a special meeting of all ward residents, Sidney Pickles, president of the Ward Six Ratepayers' Association, and his executive have issued their own pamphlet.

Councillor Kersey recently resigned from the executive of the Ratepayers' Association in protest of statements leveled at the efficiency of the Saanich Fire Department and the manner in which they were presented to the Saanich council by Mr. Pickles. The councillor called the meeting for Friday at 8 p.m. in the Temperance Hall, East Saanich Road.

URGED TO ATTEND

In the association executive's pamphlet, which will be in letter books this morning, it is stressed that the meeting called by Councillor Kersey has not been called by the Ratepayers' Association and is not under its auspices.

"But as matters of vital importance to all Ward Six ratepayers will be discussed and voted on, the president and association executive urge all to attend the meeting," states the pamphlet.

Woman Injured As Cars Crash

Freda Cooper, West Saanich Reserve, was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital suffering cuts and bruises after a two-car collision at the intersection of Wilkinson and Grange Roads yesterday at 2 p.m., Saanich police reported.

The injured woman was a passenger in a car driven by Manuel Cooper, West Saanich Road, who had apparently been in the $500 collision with a car driven by Robert Ingham, 1119 Palmer Road. Cooper's car was impounded for failing to show an insurance slip and Saanich police say he may face charges later.

Injured Child Still Critical

Sandra Collins, 18-month-old baby girl who was injured in a fall to the ground from a second-story window at her 942 Caledonia Avenue home on Monday afternoon, is still in a critical condition in St. Joseph's Hospital.

The physician who is attending her reported the girl's condition as "satisfactory and slightly improved" from yesterday.

LINER RETURNING

Reconverted for civilian passenger service after almost 10 years as a war transport, the Royal Mail motor vessel Winchester Castle is scheduled to return to the South African mail service of the Union Line, September 22, agents of the firm have announced.

Reconverted at Harland & Wolff's Belfast yards, the 20,100-ton liner's return to service will provide Union Castle with its full complement of eight passenger ships needed for its weekly mail sailings in the South African trade.

Besides serving as a troopship in the war, Winchester Castle was used as an assault training ship and thousands of commando troops practised shore landings from the liner in the Scottish lochs. Later she participated in the North African invasion and in the south of France operations.

After the war the vessel was employed in the transport of emigrants to South Africa at the request of the South African Government.

Saving Adult Lives

By DR. J. B. WARREN

"WATCH YOUR FOOD, JOHN!"

What are called old or chronic ailments cause a great many deaths which could be prevented if the health officer of the community were given enough money to spread health knowledge to middle-aged and elderly men and women. Eating the proper food and getting some light outdoor exercise (walking) daily would keep heart and lungs working in proper rhythm, create a natural appetite for food and prevent constipation.

U.N. Agencies To Be Aided By Peace Group

Establishment of a movement in Victoria to further the work of the United Nations Agencies is the aim of Mrs. Sheila Young of Vancouver, vice-president and organizer of the provincial branch of the National Peace Assembly.

Meeting at the Walden Building at 8 tonight on "Our Part in World Peace," W. A. Roper will be in the chair.

POSITIVE PROGRAM

The Peace Assembly said Mrs. Young's recent lecture was a positive peace program in support of the United Nations charter. It is a non-partisan group which feels that the United Nations is not only the only body able to maintain peace but is also the only body able to bring about the positive program. With this in mind, the Peace Assembly hopes to interest members of the United Nations in the United Nations and to bring about a positive peace program.

Outcroppings Make Maple Tree Oddity

It pipe bowls were made from maple trees instead of briar, hole of this unusual big-leaf maple at Mill Bay would keep pipe-carvers busy for some time. This peculiar formation of knotted wood is carried from base with outcroppings still occurring about one quarter height of tree.

In London, England, to take on stores on first stage of round-the-world trip in 25-foot yacht, Polar, are two young Swedes, Ernest Karlus and Jan Palms. ## Dinner at Antoine's

By FRANCES FARRINSON REYES

He looked down at her bowed head and shaking shoulders, and again he was conscious of feeling surprise. For he had no desire to put his hand on her beautiful golden hair or to encircle her slim waist with his arm.

It was getting dark. He switched on the dashboard lights and saw that it was much later than he had realized. By this time Francisco had left his office, after vainly awaiting a promised telephone call for some hours; and even a man as habitually serene as he seemed, might very well be annoyed by such a breach of good manners and good business.

And annoyance in that quarter was the last thing that Foxworth desired to encounter at this particular stage of negotiations.

After some reflection, Foxworth decided that his wisest course would be to stop off on Coliseum Street as he went downtown. The loss of a business day might be a serious one for him; in this case, his apology should be neither indirect nor retarded.

He swung his car around and drove rapidly through the fast-gathering dusk. As he drew up at the curb in front of the Darcoas' home, it occurred to him that none of those had passed seemed more inviting than this one. A faint sound, like the distant tinkle of a guitar, and of a man and girl singing together, seemed to come from somewhere in the upper story. Foxworth paused by the front steps to look and to listen, his appreciation quickened by something very close to envy; while he stood, gazing at the welcoming door, it opened slowly and Clarinda Darcoas came out.

Evidently she was on the point of starting to a late afternoon party, for she was dressed as if for some festive occasion. She might have stepped straight from a canvas by Goya; yet this exquisite picture seemed to have been mysteriously modernized by the hand of some still greater master.

"Good evening, Mr. Foxworth," she said in a voice which betrayed no surprise at his presence. "How kind of you to call. Won't you come right in?"

"But you were just going out," he remarked, coming forward a little. "And to tell you the truth, I wasn't intending to make a social visit. I want very much to see your father on a matter of great importance, and I'm afraid I've misused him at his office. I hoped I might find him here."

"He isn't home yet. But do come in and wait for him. I wasn't going out for anything important—just another cocktail party. And I can go to that later—or not at all. It wouldn't matter in the least, one way or another."

"Then—thank you very much, I will come in."

He had been at the Darcoas' house for less than an hour, and yet, in that amazingly short time, he had ceased to be angry, ceased to be anxious, and ceased to be lonely. He did not overlook the fact that he had also been cold and hungry on his arrival and that these creature wants had likewise been assuaged; but they were dwarfed by the greater necessities to which Clarinda had ministered. He went on observing her, with closer and closer attention, and finally he asked her an extremely personal question.

"How old are you, Clarinda?" She smiled in her slow charming way. "I'm past twenty-seven," she answered, without hesitation. "Twenty-seven?"

"Yes. It's a very advanced age, isn't it? My younger sister's been married almost eight years already and had four children. She was better at gathering her rosettes than I was. But after all, I do have my uses as a maiden aunt and as a dutiful daughter."

Foxworth laughed. "You don't look either part, as we generally visualize it."

"Then appearances must be more than usually deceptive. Lina and Dick live with us, and they're on the go most of the time, so they need a good nursery governess. And father's never liked the details of household management, so since Mother died—"

"Do you mean to say you're responsible for all this?"

He looked around him with increasing amazement and admiration. "You keep house for eight persons, including four children and—"

"Yes, but I've been very fortunate. I've never had any servant problem. And it's much easier for Dick and Lina this way. You might have heard them singing, when you came in. Very often they do at this hour, before they start out on a round of parties. Then generally, Father and I are alone for dinner. Of course, I still go to the Carnival balls and a few other big affairs. But when a girl's been out nearly ten years, they don't seem as exciting as they did at first. I was really envious of your nice little evening."

"You gave her the time of her life. She's immensely grateful to you. So am I. If there were anything we could possibly do to show it—"

"Why, you have! You've sat with me for nearly an hour. I've always hoped that I could have a talk with you some day—I mean, at a party or something like that. But I never dreamed that I'd get a chance to sit by the fire and take tea with you, like this."

She raised her great dark eyes and Foxworth could see their look of unclouded candor. It would have been an insult to doubt that her sincerity was as great as his own.

"Most of the men I meet—well, they're like my brother-in-law, Dick Forrestal," she went on. "Just as nice as they can be. But—well, immature. Provincial. I don't know just how to put it, without sounding condescending or disparaging and I don't want to do that. They haven't much initiative. They're not out looking around for more worlds to conquer. They're satisfied with our own little world here in New Orleans. And I'm not—that is, not completely."

ASSOCIATED SALMON-CANNERS OF BRITISH COLUMBIA

Topic for Town Meeting To Be Socialism in U.K.

Britain's experiment in state planning will come under scrutiny September 23 when Town Meeting in Canada records a nationwide radio program in Victoria High School auditorium under sponsorship of The Daily Colonist.

The topic, announced yesterday by Arthur R. Helps, founder and moderator of the six-year-old award-winning radio forum, will be: "Has Socialism Failed in Britain?"

The show will be broadcast over Town Meeting's 20 radio stations from coast-to-coast.

FOUR SPEAKERS

Four speakers, whose names will be announced soon, will debate the question in the first half of the program. In the second half, members of the public, admitted by advance sale tickets, will hammer the speakers with questions.

The discussion will theoretically be an objective survey of the British economic and political scene, but it is expected to lead into a stiff tussle between political Right and Left.

Victoria is the jumping-off-place for Town Meeting's coast-to-coast tour. A week before the visit here, a program will be recorded in Port Alberni.

SALUTE TO VICTORIA

Part of the program will be devoted to a "salute" to Victoria, first capital city of the town.

Members of Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce are assisting with the local program.

Tickets will soon be on sale at several city stores.

Foreign Exchange

NEW YORK, Sept. 14 (CP).—The Canadian dollar was down 1-16 of a cent at a discount of 413-16 per cent in terms of United States funds in closing foreign exchange dealings. The pound sterling was down 1-16 of a cent at 44.08 13-16.

Antonio Silva, author of the marionette play Don Quixote, was executed by the Inquisition in 1789.

Old Fire Hall May Be Sold Shortly

Disposal of old Duchess Street fire hall was broached Tuesday when a by-law for its sale to Alexander Spradowski for $4,000 was introduced at city council meeting.

Rival Groups At Hospital Press Claims

Struggle between two rival groups for the right to represent Royal Jubilee Hospital employees was still unresolved last night.

Royal Jubilee Hospital Employees' Association, denied certification by the Labor Relations Board yesterday retained the legal firm of campaign.

Harvey and Pearlman have written to the board asking reasons for the rejection.

WITHOUT AGENCY

The association contends that it represents a majority of employees, and that refusal of its application leaves hospital employees without a bargaining agent.

Victoria Hospital Employees' Federal Union (T.L.C.), also seeking certification, is conducting a membership campaign. Robert Holley, president, declined to release figures but predicted that the union would soon have enough members to ensure its right to act as bargaining agent, should the Labor Relations Board give the go-ahead signal.

Ewing to Preside At Term Opening

D.R. J. M. Ewing will preside over the formal opening of the 1949-1950 school term at Victoria College, to be held at 10 a.m. today in the school auditorium.

It was announced yesterday that J. B. Clearhouse, chairman of the Victoria College Council, will also welcome the students and J. A. Cunningham, vice-principal, will issue administrative details for the school year. Lectures will officially start on Monday.

Anglican Group Reports Successful Camp Season

Nearly 400 men, women and children took part in one or more of the ten visits this year to Camp Columbia, Diocesan camp of the Anglican Church, on Thetis Lake, according to the report from the office of the director, Canon Michael Coleman.

A gathering of A.F.F. members over the Labor Day week-end brought this season's camps to a close, the report states.

SUCCESSFUL SEASON

A successful season, with almost all of the camps experiencing full registration was recorded.

Designed to provide Anglican youngsters with religious training as well as a holiday in an ideal camp setting, the boys' and girls' camps offered a variety of occupations including handicrafts, choral singing and dramatics, in addition to sports.

Several hundred visitors made the trip to the camp during the Summer and inspected the camp site, buildings, playgrounds and beach.

Battle of Rule Books Staged Over Court Writ

W. H. M. Haldane yesterday lost a battle of rule books in Supreme Court when he sought to kill an application for a writ against the Labor Relations Board by preliminary objections on technical grounds.

The writ of mandamus, sought by Lloyd G. McKenzie, lawyer for the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees, Nansimo Local 234, would order the Labor Relations Board to revoke their certification of Local No. 31 of the A.P.L. Teamsters' Union as sole bargaining agent for Schofield & Malpas, Nansimo cartage firm.

Certification of the A.P.L. union ousted the C.B.R.E. local as bargaining agent for the firm.

FIRST OBJECTION

In his preliminary objection, Mr. Haldane complained that the name of the applicant was not on the summons by which the L.R.B. was hailed into court.

"Surely it is one of the very first principles of justice that any person, or board, hailed into court should find on his summons the name of the one who is doing it," he said.

When Mr. Justice A. D. Macfarlane noted that affidavits filed during the application were mentioned on the summons, Mr. Haldane complained that even if the information should have been served, it was not enough to kill the application. He complained that court rules here were "in a very bad condition."

The application was postponed until Friday when Mr. Haldane is argued that the L.R.B. is being asked to do something it has no power to do.

Reduce Insurance Rates For Houses at Duncan

DUNCAN, Sept. 14.—The new fire engine that was driven from Woodstock, Ont., by local firemen was put through its trials by an official of the B.C. Fire Underwriters Association and was reported to be satisfactory from every angle. The engine was taken to Cowichan River for pumping tests.

The City Council was informed by Mayor J. C. Wragg that insurance rates had been lowered 15 per cent on residential property and 10 per cent on commercial property. The mayor attributed the decrease to the council's policy of keeping fire fighting equipment up to date, and an enthusiastic volunteer fire brigade.

The Provincial Government has stationed a resident electrical inspector in the district. He is J. Kempton. It is understood he will supervise the area between Duncan and Nanaimo. In future electrical installations will have to pass his inspection.
